SCARED BY SIGHTS

Hungarian Woman Suffers Hysteria in Union Station.

UNABLE TO BE UNDERSTOOD

When Effort Is Made to Ascertain Her Name, She Believes She Has Committed Some Offense—Detective Berman Talks to Her in Slavic Tongue and Quiets Her.

Unable to make herself understood as she cried in her native tongue that she was innocent of any wrongdoing, Veronica Kula, forty years old, and her four little children passed an uncomfortable five hours at the New Union Station and the House of Detention yesterday afternoon and last night.

Until Detective Jake Berman spoke to her in the Slavic tongue, and assured her she was not going to be harmed, the woman was almost crazed with fear. She was later placed aboard a train for Berkeley, W. Va., where she will join her husband, a miner in the fields of Cranberry.

With Her Four Children.
With her children, the Kula woman landed in New York on Friday, and was placed aboard a train for this city. The little party reached here yesterday morning. It was made plain to them that they were to change cars here.

Bewildered by the sights, the woman and her children, Felix, eight years old; Stephen, one year his junior; Albert, four years old, and Wilhelm, two years old, stood huddled in a corner of the station.

Fright seized the woman. A few minutes later she became hysterical. Her condition attracted the attention of Detective Tysler, and he tried to learn her name. The woman feared she was going to be harmed, and her condition was pitiful.

Later, she was taken to the House of Detention, where Detective Berman spoke to her in the Slavic tongue and assured her she was in no danger. Mrs. Kula said her husband had left Hungary a year ago. He procured work in the West Virginia mines, and saved enough money to send for his little family. Until yesterday they had made the journey in safety, but when forced to remain uncared for in the station, the woman said she became overcome by fright.

Children Put to Bed.
While the mother talked with Berman, the children were put to bed. They presented a pathetic picture as they lay four abreast, their faces stained by tears.

Shortly after 11 o'clock last night, the party left for Berkeley, where they will be met this afternoon by the husband and father, who has labored for the reunion he will enjoy today.

Detective Berman speaks all the Slavic languages, and many foreigners have been directed to their destination through his efforts. In addition to being one of the best detectives in the force, Berman is the official interpreter of the police department.

W. Smith, chairman of the House Committee on the District, by the Commissioners yesterday. A plan for the distribution of ice is to be constructed on Randolph street.
